Puzzle No. 274

by Paul Green (pegreen@earthlink.net)

The solution to this puzzle is a quoted text (diagram at right) that should interest Communications Society members. If you can guess a few of the clue words (below), you are on your way to solving the puzzle. Copy each letter into the correct numbered square in the diagram. Then start guessing words in the text, and with the aid of the letters in the upper right hand corner of each square, see which clue word the letter of the solution appears in. If there is no black square at the end of a line, the word wraps to the next line. The initial letters of the clue words, when read from top to bottom, spell the author and title of the text's sources. This month's answer will appear in the January issue.
