

Affiliate Plan of the IEEE Nuclear and Plasma Sciences Society

The Affiliate Plan, established by the IEEE Board of Directors, enables individuals who are not members of the IEEE, but who have an interest in the field of nuclear science, to join the IEEE Nuclear and Plasma Sciences Society. Admission as an affiliate requires only membership in a professional society listed below. Affiliates pay a special fee, and have all Society privileges except that of holding office. Affiliates receive the IEEE TRANSACTIONS ON NUCLEAR SCIENCE.

Affiliate Plan Societies

Acoustical Society of America	American Society for Testing and Materials
American Association for the Advancement of Science	British Institute of Radiology
American Association of Immunologists	Canadian Association of Medical Physicists
American Association of Physics Teachers	Canadian Association of Physicists
American Chemical Society	Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology
American Institute of Chemical Engineers	Health Physics Society
American Institute of Nutrition	Institute of Physics of Great Britain
American Institute of Physics	Institution of Electrical Engineers (Great Britain)
American Nuclear Society	Instrument Society of America
American Physical Society	Japanese Institute of Electrical Engineers
American Physiological Society	Norwegian Nuclear Society
American Society of Bio-Chemistry	Optical Society of America
American Society of Experimental Pathology	Radiation Research Society
American Society of Mechanical Engineers	Scientific Research Society of America
American Society of Pharmacology & Experimental Therapeutics	Society of Nuclear Medicine
	Society of Rheology
	The Physical Society of Great Britain

How an Individual May Become an Affiliate of the IEEE Nuclear and Plasma Sciences Society

Send your name, mailing address, and the name of the affiliate plan society to which you belong, together with your check for $33.00, to IEEE Service Center, 445 Hoes Lane, P.O. Box 1331, NJ 08855-1331.